HalSail FAQ

Does HalSail use cookies?

HalSail uses cookies to enable the proper working of the website. For instance, it uses a cookie to keep you logged into your account after you have entered your email address and password. It also uses cookies to remember which results you looked at last.

The only third-party cookie HalSail uses is for analytics, so that we can accumulate statistics about how the site is used, what types of devices people use and which browsers they favour. The purpose is to make the site work as well as possible for the most people.

HalSail does not have any advertising or other third-party cookies.

Help index